I found a subtly different atmosphere Wednesday in the cockpit under the marveilously-wrought ceiling. It was that of a classroom when teacher's stepped out, complete even to the bad boy chalking an unflattering likeness on the blackboard. Adjusting to the Ban sion from the European Common Market by the action of President de Gaulle, Britain is facing the fact that it cannot retire into insular isolation. Against a background of closer ties with the United States and the Commonwealth, Britain must also seek by every means to maintain its contacts with the countries of Western Europe.

Singly, since group association has been demed it, Britain must keep open the lines of communication with the members of the ECM. If it does not, the tive partners of France will all the sooner tail under the domination of their ambitious associate - a development which would not be to their advantage individually or to that of Europe as a wnoie.

In this regard Chanellor Adenauer is alreaux caught in a diemma. His country is generally in favor of continuing association with Britain, in particular as à partner in the ECM. But the important treaty with France, uniting the two traditional enemies, must be ratified, and this is made more difficult by President de Gaulle's insistence on cutting ties with Britain.

It could well be that the 83year-old Chancellor Adenauer might use the difficulties of this situation as a reason to announce postponement of his scheduled retirement in September. Since much of his current support in West Germany is contingent on his early retirement, this could precipitate further serious problems

The fact is clear in most Western capitals, if not in Paris, that a French Europe will not work. Quite apart from the internal and external pressures that are present—poten-tial or actual—there is the stark fact of defence in a nuclear world.

France is not powerful enough to defend Europe against Russia. Only the United States, with its massive deterrent of nuclear armament, is capable of this task. West Germany

Already there are the rumblings discontent with President de Gaulle's opvious intentions of dominating the European community. Itary shows signs of rebellion and has held talks with Britain. Beigium's brilliant spokesman, Mr. Spaak, sees the need for Britain in Europe, sensing the inherent dang-

Mr. Kennedy can still, however, cut American tariffs by 50 per cent in return for similar cuts by the ECM, and he can remove entirely any tariffs of 5 per cent or less. the new elan in France, but to a far greater extent it has depressed the rest of Europe. Other European statesmen have been fighting for a gradual melt-ing down of the nation-state structure, which they blame for Europe's wars. The European Economic Community came into existence before de Gaulle. But however much he has tried to adapt it to his own concept, the Treaty of Rome is clearly a giant step toward another concept—the gradual merging of sov-ereignties, first in one sphere and then another, leading eventually to virtually a single democratic European nation and hence a permanent end to European

After De Gaulle

The prospect of one country, or even worse one man, dominating the European scene sickens the "new Europeans." now de Gaulle, but after de Gaulle whom? And from which country?

To the campaigners for European unity who have retired injured to their capitals from Brussels, the mere fact de Gaulle could do what he did proves anew the need to work for a Europe without internal frontiers.

Frenchmen are well aware of the united Europe concept-some of the original European unionists were French-men-but they point out that history is scarce with successful voluntary merg-ings of sovereignties. Alliances and groupings of states, yes, amalgamations of peoples with different languages and traditions, no.

But the drive for genuine European unity has developed a natural momentum already, especially among the rela-tively young. Multilingualism is growing, international travel is taken for granted and national traditions are me

The contest is not simply between a Gaullist Europe and an Atlantic Europe, as the French say, within Europe, it is also a contest between a united, democratic Europe and the old divided Europe of strongman politics.

Third Force

As for the Atlantic aspect, the idea of a "third force" Europe has great appeal. But it means different things to different people. De Gaulle sees American domination of European defences as leaving Europe suddenly unprepared to defend fiself after the Americans retire to their own continent behind a screen to their own continent behind a screen of submarine missiles. Frenchmen seem of submarine missies. Frenchmen seem to assume with remarkable readiness that the U.S. will before long cease to consider the defence of Europe essential to its own interests.

Other Europeans are far from transmit about such a presence.

Other Europeans are far from tran-quil about such a prospect. They come nowhere near sharing the French belief either that Russia will one day drift toward an accommodation with West Europe or that West Europe can ever be defended from Russia without U.S. strength, They are afraid not that the U.S. will go away of its own accord the strength. They are afraid not that the U.S. will go away of its own acoord, but that the French attitude may drive the U.S. away, leaving Europe to be shielded by France's "force de frappe."

Independence from American domination is as popular a theme in the rest of Europe as in France, but the rest of Europe does not so readily believe that an Atlantic Community must inevitably be U.S. dominated. They see the community as an appropriate participal participal popular in the community as an appropriate participal munity as an eventual partnership of equals in all but defence, with the closest sible co-operation even in that.

The Gaullist concept is not of a part-nership at all, and it cannot make up for a break in the partnership with equality in defence. Independence of Europe from America is one thing. ing into the international way of life of Alienation is another, and potentially the affluent society; at least in the cities. fatal thing. It is what Gaullism means.

With others, I have had first-hand experience which enables me to under-stand how difficult it is to restore con-fidence once it has been shaken. fidence once it has been shaken.

On two occasions it was explained to me by high officials how reliable was our photographic surveillance of the island and how certainly we could detect the exact nature of the weapons being installed in Cuba. These private explanations came after the President had said categorically in his press conference of Sept. 13 that "these new shipments do not constitute a serious threat to any other part of the hemisphere."

confidence originates in what happened

During the month of September and into October, the administration was insisting that the Soviet Union had not brought offensive weapons into Cuba.

Senator Keating was insisting that they had. When he was found to have been right, there occured a loss of confidence in the administration's intelligence serv-ices which it is still struggling to repair.

Shaken Confidence

Some two weeks later, on Oct. 3, the under secretary of state, Mr. Ball, gave to a congressional committee a summary of the intelligence information which came from the CIA. The point of the summary was that there were no of-fensive weapons in Cuba.

But in fact there were. A week later, on Oct. 10, Senator Keating insisted that there were intermediate range missiles in Cuba, and five days later the President received the photographs which confirmed the charge.

This is how Senator Keating won the right to be listened to, and this is why the administration has now; belatedly, made the right move, which is to arrange for consultation and an exchange of information between Senator Keating and the CIA.

Competitive Truth

This should put an end to the unseemly controversy about who is telling the truth between a senator of the United States and the President of the United States. But I am not sure it will repair altogether the damage done to public confidence by the misleading information given out in September and October. The administration may well have also to make a full explanation of what went wrong in September and early October. early October.

Examining the remarkable intelligence briefing by Mr. John Hughes of the de-fence department, I find myself quite convinced that our photographic intelligence is now reliable. But I am struck by the fact that there was a blank space in Mr. Hughes' testimony for the period from Sept. 5 to Oct. 14.

Photographs taken on Aug. 29 of the San Cristobal area and on Sept. 5 at Sagua La Grande show positively that no missile sites had been built. The next no missile sites had been built. The next photograph referred to by Mr. Hughes is that of Oct. 14. It shows intermediate range missile sites being erected. This is the photograph which precipitated the international crisis.

Where, we are bound to ask, was our photographic intelligence between Sept. 5 and Oct. 14? That was when the ministration was telling the country that there were no offensive weapons in Cuba. This is the source of the infection which will have to be removed if full there were no offensive weapo confidence is to be restored.

Daily Reconnaissance

Having said this, I would say that there is no reason to doubt the thoroughness or the reliability of our photographic surveillance of Cuba and of the sea around it. The situation is extraordinary. We are depending on being able to fly daily photographic reconnaissance planes at high and low altitude. In Cuba, there are a large number of the latest anti-aircraft weapons manned by Soviet soldiers.

We may say, how come? Up to the present knock on wood the Soviet anti-aircraft gunners are not attacking our reconnaissance planes. They must be under orders from Moseow, where it is well-known that if the planes were attacked there would be an immediate well-known that if the planes were

The Macdonald Plan Faces Obstacles

DR. JOHN B. MACDONALD'S proposals to provide higher educational facilities for the 37,000 young British Columbians he predicts will be seeking them eight years hence have run into the obvious barrier—costs.

Minister of Education Leslie Peterson says the University of British Columbia president's plan is unattainable unless Ottawa pays all, or a large part of, the bill. The province, says the minister, can't afford it.

This does not mean that the Macdonald report will be shelved. Some of its suggestions can be implemented, or a start can be made on them.

But the recommendations, based on the considered opinion of a top educator, are not given carte blanche approval.

Some people will see the education minister's reaction merely as a gesture to throw the whole burden of higher education onto the federal government—in direct conflict with the early understanding of the British North America Act which left education solely within the jurisdic-

That former concept has, of course, been modified by the years. The federal government has shown an understanding of the change by its university grants program-and the legislation which permits those grants—as well as by providing funds to assist university students and to furnish centres for technical and vocational training.

Mr. Peterson's argument that the federal government should pay for all, or most, of higher education in Canada, because the product of that education is a national ass conveys a strange parallel to the case raised by cities and municipalities in British Columbia which think fatal rupture of European unity. The Brussels breakdown was de the province should free them of the school burden.

The minister has understandably lowered the sights set by Dr. Macdonald when he aimed at the target of furnishing opportunities for higher education for all who deserve them — or will deserve them — by the school burden.

It is a latal rupture of European unity. The Brussels breakdown was de Gaulle's first major application of his concept of a "Europe des Patries," a Europe of nation-states. He could not have chosen an instance to show more vividly that some "Patries" are to be more equal than others. - or will deserve them - by

But there is a clear conflict of outlook between the government and Dr. Macdonald on the relationship between higher education and the provincial economy. The min-ister says our working forces would have to rise from 580,000 to 700,000 at least to finance the Macdonald at least to finance the Macdonald plan. of good taste and his lack of respect for his superiors. From the position of a politician, Mr. Peterson must, of course, deal with practicalities. It will be interesting to see how he prepares now to handle double the present number of young British Columbians who will be demanding education beyond high school before the end of another decade.

Bases and Deterrents

IT IS NATURAL AND NORMAL, of course, for Russia to protest against United States nuclear bases in foreign countries. And now that the land-based rocket sites are to be removed from Turkey, Britain and other European points, the protests are being turned against nuclear submarine bases.

The latter pose a more complex question. Since nuclear submarines, armed with Polaris missiles, can stay at sea for months at a time, the actual land bases from which they set sail are of less importance. The real protest is against the threat of these shifting, hard-to-detect and harder-to-destroy missile launchers.

Russia's protest, delivered at Geneva, would carry greater effect as the voice of an aggrieved, pos-sible victim if the Soviet representative had not spoken only a few days after Mr. Khrushchev had publicly warned the rest of the world that no part of the planet today is outside the range of Soviet nuclear outside the range of Soviet nuclear rockets. And Mr. Khrushchev implied that his intercontinental ballistic missiles could carry supercargoes of nuclear destruction. Intermediary bases, he said, were no longer of importance.

In the new faith, new faith, new life has been brought to our town.

A new idea is born.

Mr. R. D. Clack, our city architect, tathfully committed himself to the task and has done such a wonderful planning ick that the people of Victoria accepted

The Soviet protest against United States bases, then, seems to be little more than an academic argument.

As we move further into an era of super-weapons capable of super-destruction the need for international control of armaments becomes more critically apparent.

And over the weekend Grosart, the master publicist, set himself to the task of selling Hees' resignation as the departure of the vanquished after a struggle for power.

Grosart, I'm told, is still the party's master strategist and Diefenbaker's most control of the contr trusted adviser on political tactics. And Grosart is said to have told the PM that the Conservatives can win 168 seats if they conduct a vigorous anti-American campaign.

I do not question Hees' concern over defence and our relations with the U.S. But I do question whether these matters would have been sufficient, by themselves, to bring about the voluntary political exile of a man who in 1945 had to be persuaded that he would have a better chance to win if he ran as a Tory rather than a CCFer.

Maybe this comment does him an injustice. It is only since 1954 that Hees found his niche. And he developed into one of the ablest and most energetic ministers of the Diefenbaker administration. But it is also true that by dissociating himself from the potential Tory disaster on April 8, he prepares the way for his return to party prominence; perhaps as chief celebrant in Conservative obsequies over Diefenbaker-

DUNCAN—The city of Duncan, considered by illinformed outsiders as largely a haven for retired English gentlemen, is really the focal point for one of the largest commercial lumbering and logging areas in Canada.

Tweedy citizens are still seen, but the real wealth of the area is personified by the caulk-booted members of the booming lumbering fraternity.

Logging and the processing of lumber and pulp manufacturing are the principal industries in the Cowichan Valley with many smaller enterprises serving them.
Some of the largest remaining stands of virging fit, spruce, district.

Numerous sawmilling operations are carried out throughout the area. The largest sawmills are located at Chemainus, Youbou, Mesachie Lake and Honeymoon Bay, producing 341 million board feet annually with a collective annual payroll of $8,600,000.

The B.C. Forest Products pulp mill at Crofton produces about 6,500 tons of kraft monthly with an annual payroll of $2.5 million.

Recent statistics show that of the 26,000 total population in the district, 14 per cent or 9,300 are considered labor force, of which 7,800 are paid workers.

In the lumber industry, about 3,770 workers are employed in logging camps, sawmills and pulpmill. This is almost 40 per cent of the labor force and 14 per cent of the total population in the district.

Lumber industry employees are broken down into three groups; Loggers, 1,350; sawmill workers, 1,980; and pulpmill workers, 440, bringing the total to 3,770.

NORTH WELLINGTON Par threaten to stage a second school boycott and build their own highway underpass at an intersection where a child was killed

Mount Benson School PTA will hold a public meeting in Welling-ton Community Hall, Sunday night, to plot action, following an inspection by Highways Min-ister Gaglardi of Jingle Pot Road crossing.

He refused to reconstruct the intersection to provide a pedestrian tunnel or overpass. "The volume of traffic simply is not great enough to warrant it," the minister said.

After a six-year-old boy was hit by a heavy transport tractor-trailer, parents kept nearly all the 217 pupils of Mount Benson School home for several days as a protest to the dangerous

Monday, and meanwhile the par ents have hope that heavy equip-ment to build an underpass may be volunteered to them.

Parents' spokesman Frank Murphy will discuss the situation with MLA Dan Campbell on Friday.

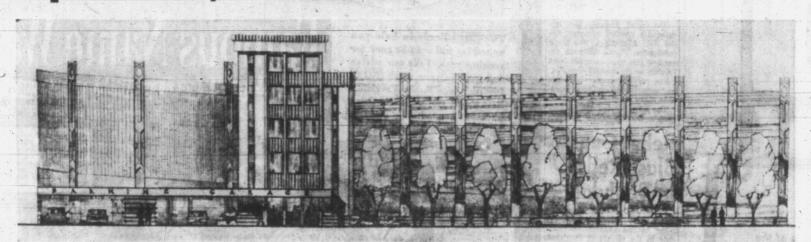

Mr. Gaglardi said refusal to build a crossing is "not a matter of money or cost," although 4,000 feet of Trans.Canada Highway would have to be reconstructed.

The question is "simply one of the degree of danger involved." he said. Between 8:30 and 9 a.m. 100 school children crossed the highway and 100 cars went through the inter-

LOOKS AT SPORTS

Say what you like about Canadians, they are loud and prejudiced.

A male yuk watching University of British Columbia Thunderbirds at Esquimalt Tuesday, leaned over to his companion and said: "If this is the team Canada is sending to the Olympics, then God help Canada.'

Other abrasive comments filtered down through the stands, especially in the first five minutes when Esqu took a 1-0 lead.

If they raised the hackles on the neck of Father David Bauer, it wasn't apparent. He has heard similar abuses of free speech since the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association yielded to his offer to take a crop of college students, mold them into a team, and allow them to wear the Maple Leaf in the 1964 Olympic Games.

Getting a licence to coach a Canadian team in world competition isn't exactly a bargain. Most teams from these shores have left indelible impressions in recent years. Trail Smoke Eaters, the current edition, is so ripe that fellow essayist James Coleman was prompted to say they should be "forcibly restrained" from going abroad.

So what prompted Father Bauer to imperii his health?

"I ran into Gordon Juckes and Art Potter (lord high priests of the CAHA) and told them if they didn't have anyone in mind I thought I could get a team from Canadian

"I did it because I think there is going to be a great development in our schools. They predict an enrollment of 34,000 at UBC, you know. And they tell me in Alberta there are 384 ways a boy can get into college, scholarships and that sort of thing."

Sacrifice? 'What Wall, Father?'

Father Bauer is 38, with straight brown hair, slight but dy. The word is he could have been in the National Hockey League if he had wanted. A brother, Bobby, no larger physically, spent some time there. With Boston Bruins, I believe.

Flannelmouth fan, up in the stands, didn't know it but only four of the present Thunderbirds are likely to be around in '64.

These four Father Bauer recruited from Ontario.

There has been a rumor that their tuition, board and expense money was coming from the wallets of National Hockey League teams, say Toronto and Montreal.

He skewered that one. "The boys borrowed the money," he said, "to come to to pay their school fees and their living expenses." No outside help?

"When I approached them," he said, "I asked if worst comes to worst will you walk out to UBC? I can't offer you anything but sacrifice.' They said 'yes'."

"Their sacrifice has been unbelievable. We practice at noon hour or at 11 p.m.—whenever we can get ice. If I said 'go through that wall' I'm sure they would do it."

Recipe: Mix Teaching With Humor

On the bench he is anything but a sit-still coach: He chews gum with magnificent rhythm, sits, stands and sits with the tempo of play.

again with the tempo of play.

Often he leaned over the boards to give encouragement and advice . . "Don't stand still with the puck, move it" . "Keep your head up" . . "Pass it—NOW!"

Once when a player came off dejectedly after hitting the post with the goalie beaten, Father Bauer grinned and said, "that's alright, Cliff, you've only missed four goals."

Cliff Russell, No. 16 and crew cut, laughed out loud. Another time a player, bespectacled and anxious, looked longingly for the sign to go over the beards. Faciling his longingly for the sign to go over the boards. Feeling his anxiety. Father Bauer, turned slowly and quipped: "Howdy." The boy replied "Howdy, Father," and relaxed. There was in the first period an example of his coaching ability and the Thunderbirds' response to it.

Left a man short through a penalty, the Birds went into a diamond formation designed to waste time have the into a diamond formation designed to waste time, lure the opposition into a mistake and then capitalize on it. Birds worked the puck this way for several seconds and

"Bring it back, Barry, way back," Father Bauer shouted. Almost instantly, McKenzie made a smooth turn, wheeled deep into his own end killing more precious

'That Thick Neck . . . Those Shoulders

Of McKenzie, he said later: "He's ready to play in the Western Hockey League today. He's a better player than (Ed) Westfall of Boston."

The Birds' roster contains names like Smith and Parker, McLeod and Unsworth. But no young men of French heritage. Mon, Dieu! What is this?

"I have one in mind," said Father Bauer. "I met him at St. Michael's four years ago. Andre Champagne. He is big-195 pounds—and fast. And he has great desire.

IN SKATING CHAMPIONSHIPS

Loyalties Stretched

VANCOUVER-Jean Westwood of Victoria is a skating coach who is finding her loyalties stretched in at least two directions. In the first place, she is from Manchester, England, and it was to England that she and partner Lawrence Demmy brought the world dance title in figure skating for a record five years-1951-55.

But her immediate problem is the North American figure skating championships which go here Friday and Saturday.

Miss Westwood, a personable, 31-year-old blonde, has two entries in the senior dance event. One entry repre-sents Canada, the other the United States.

Her proteges are Donna-Lee and John Mitchell of Vancouver and Lorna Dyer and John Carrell of Seattle, both strong contenders in their event. In the recent Canadian championships in Edmonton, the Mitchells finished

Deputy Abbott Recommended For Chief's Post

cil by fire wardens committee

The recommendation endorsed a suggestion of Chief James Bayliss who retires March 31 on reaching the retirement age of 60. The choice was endorsed by city manager C. C. Wyatt and fire wardens chairman Ald. A. I. Curtis.

Retirement of Chief Bayliss signals the start of a four-year.

signals the start of a four year period during which there will be rapid turnover in the senior ranks of the force as many of the top men are in the same age bracket.

A 37-year veteran Deputy Chief Abbott, if his promotion is confirmed by council this week, will reach retirement age in 2½ years as will some captains.

"Scalp tension, a sign of the times, is one cause of your hair loss," says trichologist M. D. Harrison to balding man. Harrison directs the famous Harrison Hair and Scalp Special sa alone on his farm. The ists, whose main office is in Vancouver. He is sending a specialist here to advise men how to correct hair troubles by home treatment.

How to save and improve your hair demonstrated by expert here today and tomorrow

New home treatment methods for preventing baldness—and growing thicker hair—will be demonstrated in Victoria today and tomorrow, February 14 and 15.

This news was released here today by M. D. Harrison, in-ternationally famous director of Harrison Hair and Scalp Harrison said.

"Your only obligation is to yourself—to free your mind of worries about hair loss, dandruff, itching, or other scalp disorders, by learning how to take care of your hair. If your trouble is beyond the scope of Harrison Home treatment, we will frankly tell you so. But less than five per cent of the people we examine are 'hopeless'."

Offers No Cure-All

Harrison emphasized that his new home treatment is neither "mail-order" nor "cure-all."

Who Can Be Helped?
Will this new treatment cure baldness? "No." said Harrison sincerely. "We cannot help men who are slick-bald after years of gradual hair loss. But where your scalp still grows hair, we can at least save and improve what you have. Usually, we can grow more hair even where you have only ally, we can grow more hair even where you have only and regrow hair in the privacy of your own home.

Much-Used Egg Cups Available In Ceramic By PENNY SAVER

Egg cups hard to find?—I wouldn't have believed it until today when I decided to investigate this oft quoted problem.

Since I like my egg's sunny side up, egg cups are not one of my worries. But hardly a week goes by but I don't hear somebody moaning about having broken one and how difficult they are to replace.

This morning I consulted with a manager in one store and he said the complaints were legitimate. They either come in bone china, which are too expensive, or in a very simple, unattractive design. (If you have any ideas get them on the market quick.)

But he did have one answer to the problem. He had some ceramic egg cups, made in Japan, that had been part of a set and didn't sell as such so he is now selling them for 25 cents apiece. The colors are pastel and the ceramic has a basket-weave effect on the outside.

Have you seen the pouring spout made for any canned liquid? It has a metal tip which pierces the top of the can and screws down into a firm position. Pouring lip is made of heat-resistant plastic and has a plastic cap. Once the spout is inserted the canned milk or judie is ready for instant use and with the cap on it will stay fresh and odor free. Most important it doesn't leak or enlash. When the can is empty, remove the screw, clean in hot water and it is ready for next one. Price, 49 cents.

If you are in the market for a baby stroller I suggest you look at one just put out by a Vancouver firm. As an introductory offer it is priced at $24.95, about five dollars less than it will be later on

This stroller is made of aluminum tubing that does not stain or tarnish. A headboard, which folds down and converts the stroller into a play or eating table, is made of shock-resistant plastic. It is lightweight and collapses for carrying on buses.

BRIDGE LESSON

- By OSWALD JACOBY If West should open a club he could defeat South's four spade contract, but no one can blame West for leading and continuing hearts.

South ruffs the third heart and notes a sure club finesses sometimes work, but West has made a takeout double and is likely to hold the king of diamonds as part of his hid.

South can avoid lead-ing the diamonds himself by an elimination play. He will have to play. He will have to be lucky, but luck comes to those who give the cards a chance give the cards a chance and South has nothing to lose. He leads a trump to dummy, ruffs the last heart, plays one more trump in order to eliminate the last trump and then plays the ace, king and another club.

Both West North East
1 Double 2 Pass
4 Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead—VK another club. West has seen what South is up to and West would like to unblock the club suit. Unfortunately he is also looking right at the nine of clubs in durany. If West unblocks he will merely make that nine of clubs good and West is forced to win the club who can resist a look at a line of shop window in passing.

That leaves West right in the soup. A fourth club INSULATION at its lead will give declarer a ruft and discard. A diamond one to stand the TEST. lead will be right up to South's acc-queen.

Caesar showed the reaction of passers by of a shop window which held a TV camera. As they walked by held a TV camera. As they wanted by $2.79 they were able to see themselves on a $1.49 set in the window. There's a bit of $1.29 ham in all of us and the strollers re-

It was much like watching Candid
Camera, except in this case we recognized ourselves in the characters posing in front of the camera and were amused rather than undergoing emparrassment at the expense of our fellow man. Caesar gave us buffoonery and satire at its best.

After watching this hour I'm just as glad that four out of five times reception is clear enough to be able to catch, good quality drama on the Dick Powell Theorem and were amused rather than undergoing emparrassment, at the expense of our fellow man. Caesar down into his bag of tricks and came up with one of the brightest of his monthly offerings. This was his fifth program and it featured vanity. It struck awfully close to home, for who can resist a look at a mirror or a However, someone must have slipped more backbone into the stories with '63.

There were five persons shot to death and enough bullets expended in the final scenes to fight the Second World War all over again. Robert Stack, in the main role as Elliot Ness, continues to retain his deadpan expression faithfully, but I'm willing to bet he smiles all the way to the bank.

CALLING ALL TECHNICIANS: There's a new Unable to watch the Dick Powell Theatre because on his black and white set. If there's someone who can answer this phenomenon I'd be pleased to hear 7.55

City Waiting Legislation On Library

City Hall has gone as far as it can in opening the public library door to View Royal residents but needs government legislation to make it a reality, Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson said Wednesday.

She said she sympathized with impatience of several View Royal persons who wrote the city asking reasons for delay in the service to the unorganized area.

Ald. Wilson said a legal technicality stands in the way that needs amendment of the Public Library Act.

Well Stroked

The boy with the chalk was close-cropped Frank Calder, Atlin NDP, who rose after Recreation Minister Westwood's meaty report to charge the government with lack of a medicare policy, and with slashing strokes, to predict its end.

"This," said Mr. Calder, one hand thrust in jacket pocket and spectacles gleaming, "is a budget of a desper-ate premier. With it begins the finale to a tragic drama. This drama can only end in the downfall of the Social Credit government."

The people are "on to the premier's goodies," Mr. Calder went on, fronting the empty blue chair across the floor. "They know his meth-ods. This man is a political freebooter and pirate

Decisive Margin In Vote LONDON (Reuters)

Harold Wilson, 46, today was elected leader of the opposition Labor party with the possibility of becoming Britain's next prime minister.

Wison defeated Deputy Leader George Brown by 144 votes to 103 in a secret ballot of Labor members of Parlia-ment to choose a successor to the late Hugh Gaitskell. Wilson's victory — which had been widely forecast—was an-nounced to Labor members at a private meeting in the House His impressive margin of 41 votes came close to the most optimistic forecasts of his supporters before the ballot. Wilson becomes the 10th leader in the Labor party's 57-year history and at the moment of his election the youngest except for two Arthur Hender-son, in 1908, and James Ram-say MacDonald, in 1911.

The Labor members voted technically to appoint a chairman of their parliamentary committee — "shadow cabinet" —but this post carries with it leadership of the Labor move-ment nationally.

With the Conservative government's five-year term of power cue to end in 1964, the new Labor leader's immediate task is to gear up the move-ment's fighting machine for the victory socialists hope to win at
